A noble man and Mason gone, And thus they vanish one by one, Into a realm beyond the sun, When life on earth is richly done. He loved to laugh and sing and play, As happy as the garish day. That flings its sumshine through the hours And thrills the blooming fields and flowers. His friends shall keep his memory green And over many a mystic scene Recall the banquet hours so bright, When he infused sweet love and light.

Of a love that is seldom met.
When I think of my dear father,
Whom I never shall forget.

A sweet reunion in heaven again;

We will join glad hands on that golden shore Where pain and sorrow can come nevermore LOVING WIFE AND DAUGHTER PEARL.
